ALLIES ARE CONSULTED

Payment of Exterior Debt and Threat of Revolt Involved.

Special Cable to The New York Herald. Copyright, 1921, by The New York Herald.

ATHENS, Dec. 24.—Important negotiations involving a settlement of the Greece-Turkish war and Greece's indebtedness to the Allies are believed to be pending. Regarding it as essential that Greece should hold Smyrna as a condition to discharge her indebtedness to the Allies and bring stability to the Greek Government, it is understood from reliable information that she is about to make proposals whereby certain concessions will be given in Smyrna in return for allied credits, and also an international police force for Smyrna will be suggested.

Such force would be paid out of the revenues of the country, which would be controlled by an international committee, according to the scheme, and part of the remainder would be used toward the liquidation of Greece's exterior debt. The Greeks think it is no more to their interest than to that of the Allies to give up Smyrna and leave that will treat with the Turks only on that condition, Smyrna being far richer in commercial possibilities than even Greece proper and affording them the only means they see of discharging their indebtedness.

The situation is rapidly reaching a critical state, for unless the Allies support the Greek claims the Greek army must be withdrawn, and if it is returned to Greece without employment a revolution is possible. On carefully sounding the sentiment here one sees that the Greek people are tired of war and want peace at any price if their dignity can be preserved. The majority seem to want to retain King Constantine and fall to see any difference for the Allies between King Constantine and his son.

To private individuals who furnish credits they will give important concessions in Smyrna.

There is little unemployment here, and due to a consortium of Greek bankers who are now controlling exchange, Greece is better off in its money than some central European countries, despite the fact that the Government is impoverished, as many of the monies are controlled by allied nations which lent her money during the war.

KING OF AMERICAN GYPSY TRIBES DIES

Joseph Eli Succumbs in Detroit Hospital.

Special Dispatch to The New York Herald. Detroit, Dec. 24.—With his kinsmen grouped walling about his bier, Joseph Eli, king of gypsy tribes in North America, lay this morning in the innermost dusk of a dingy pool room in St. Antoine street.

From the far West his people had brought the king to the skilled surgeons of Detroit. The staffs of a half dozen hospitals, moved strangely by the grief of the Romany tribe, more used to song than to weeping, to laughter than to tears, had tried in vain to save the life of the king.

He will be taken by his people, under guidance of Peter Eli, his eldest brother and the new king, to Chicago to be laid in the tomb of his father, former occupant of the throne.

J. M. DANZIGER'S WIFE SUES FOR A DIVORCE

Says Oil Man Was Cruel and Had Women Companions.

Special Dispatch to The New York Herald. LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24.—As a climax to several months of gossip here and in New York, Mrs. Daisy Canfield Danziger filed an action for divorce to-day against J. M. Danziger, associate of E. J. Doheny and well known sporting man. The principal charge is cruelty.

It is charged that Mr. Danziger spent vast sums on other women. Stories of her husband's activities along these lines reached Mrs. Danziger's ears, it is stated, through her friends and caused her serious mental anguish.

Mrs. Danziger asks that she be permitted to resume her maiden name of Canfield. It is said that there are three children, Beth Cloe, aged 11; Jay M., aged 8, and Daisy Canfield Danziger, aged 19.

BRIGHTON LINE WRECK LAWSUIT IS SETTLED

Girl Whose Jaw Was Broken Accepts $4,500.

One of the last of many suits commenced against Lenox M. Garrison as receiver of the New York Consolidated Railway Company as a result of the Brighton line wreck of November 1, 1920, was settled yesterday with the approval of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. The claim of Miss Elizabeth Van Arsdale of 3122 Mermaid avenue, Coney Island, has been settled for $4,500. A claim made by her mother, Elizabeth, for loss of her services during the time of convalescence was settled by the defendant for $1.

The girl was a passenger of the train which smashed to pieces, causing the death of almost a hundred persons. Miss Van Arsdale sustained a fracture of the jaw. It has healed, but there is a slight limitation in the motion of the jaw.
